Philosophy

The sites visited in each of the courses in the series, Our National Treasures, present inquisitive participants with many facets of our cultural heritage. The course experience itself is an exploratory process that is as much to be valued as the sites themselves. As a curious lifelong learner one must perform research in order to discover answers that lead to more questions and more research. Thus in this course, the participant prepares for the site visit by conducting investigations to gain a better appreciation of the knowledge and inspiration that the national treasure will offer. At the locale itself, questions are posed that further one's desire to engage in additional study. Therefore touring the site and becoming engrossed in the process becomes the true national treasure.

Course Description

The Smithsonian and other museums located in our nation's capital are treasures that highlight the culture of our multifaceted heritage. This course gives teachers the opportunity to experience some of these treasures and relate that experience to the teaching/learning act.

Course Objectives

The teacher will:

1. Visit two or three museums in Washington DC
2. Explore online fourteen different museums before deciding which ones to physically visit
3. Conduct further research after visiting the museums
4. Relate the research and the museum visits to the teaching/learning act
5. Explain how the museum visits combined with research helped to better understand one's own heritage

Section 1 – Exploratory Research

- 1A. Look over all fourteen museum links and list the ones you have chosen to visit.
- 1B. Why did you choose these museums?
- 1C. How valuable was it to research sites before making your choices?
- 1D. What implication does conducting prior investigation have upon teaching?

Section 2 – The visit

* Due to changing circumstances, you may necessarily make a last minute change in visitation choice.

Submit photos of yourself at each museum

2A. at the entrance with an identifiable landmark.

2B. inside the museum with a museum employee.

List knowledge you gleaned

2C. from the employee pictured with you in each museum.

2D. from exhibits in each museum – major importance to you.

Section 3 – Post research and explorations

3A. Curiosity is the key to lifelong learning - list some areas or items from each museum that sparked your curiosity.

3B. Describe the research you conducted to satisfy that curiosity.

3C. . What implication does the post visit research and the motivation of curiosity have for teaching?

Section 4 – Communicating your experience

Use the picture of yourself at one of the museums as the front of a postcard. On the back, compose a message to a friend or relative telling how this experience of visiting some national treasures created a better understanding of your cultural heritage. Submit copies of the front and back of the postcard for Assignment 4.

Section 5 – Into your Classroom

Write about how the information, inspiration and ideas gleaned from the National Treasures you visited could enhance your classroom teaching?
